

THE GAZETTE.

WEDNESDAY JANUARY 16.

IT PAYS TO BE HONEST.

The other day a somewhat prominent business man was arranged before a judge in New York on the charge of swindling. This man was led to dishonesty through a greed for gain. He had been reasonably successful in business but he wanted more and wanted faster and in greater abundance than he could accumulate through the ordinary methods of doing business, and so he began the way of the transgressor, was detected, arrested, convicted and imprisoned. It was not until after he found himself in the iron grasp of the law that he was fully convinced that the best investment one could make was to be honest.

That a reasonably prosperous business man will steal is one of the many mysteries of this strange life. That any man of industry, of sobriety, of respectable standing in business circles, whether he has been reasonably prosperous or not, will steal, is beyond common understanding. Sometimes a hungry man will commit a theft for reasons that are very plain—because there are hunger and a lack of manly courage—and men driven to desperation by financial embarrassment have been tempted to become embezzlers, but there is a mystery about the man who will commit a crime through a vulgar, sordid nature.

It is the experience of the world that thoroughly stupid in the long run is all the crime, and none more stupid than theft; and yet men of fair repute for brightness, sometimes steal. It is the opinion of every thief that has been caught, that it doesn't pay to steal. The psychology of sin is not easy of solution, and yet it is astonishing that a man of even mediocre intellect should not be able to see that to enter on a life of crime is gross stupidity. Not long ago a Harvard student robbed a college friend of quite a large sum of money—money which the thief did not need—and it was here but recently that two skillful mechanics, sober, industrious, well thought of, living at Springfield, Massachusetts, were arrested for uttering counterfeit coin. What did it profit these three young men to begin the lives of criminals? They can answer that question very readily now, but why didn't they think of it before they became criminals?

There is one thing that all young men should thoroughly understand—that no amount of stolen capital will recompense for lost reputation. When Charles Angell stole $80,000 of the Pullman car money in 1878, and ran off to Europe with it, he said it was the heaviest burden he ever carried. He even envied the life of the honest street laborers of Madrid; and he afterwards said the greatest relief he ever experienced in all the course of his life, was when a United States officer from Chicago, meeting him on the streets of Madrid, laid his hand on his shoulder, and said, "Charles Angell, you are my prisoner." But he said the loss of his business integrity could not be made good with all the millions the Pullman car company possessed. When Cassio was dismissed by Otello for his part in a drunken spree he cried, "Reputation, reputation, I have lost my reputation, I have lost the immortal part of myself!" Every thief or other criminal in the world, who has even a mite of conscience reserved, will say that Cassio was right, that reputation is something for which no amount of stolen goods will compensate.

There is a saying going abroad that a big thief stands about as well in business circles and in society as anybody else. This is the view that Iago took of it, but it is repudiated by every man of ingenuity and honesty. There is as much difference between Cassio and Iago—between an honest man and a scoundrel—as there is between heaven and hell. In these days of vast accumulation of property, of indefatigable public and private energy, of tremendous greed for gain, and of the overreaching and merciless demands of society, it behooves young men to look well to their reputation, to stand firm in its integrity.

It cannot be said with absolute exactness that the eyes of country are upon Delaware, says the New York Tribune, it is never the less true that that little state is about to be the scene of important action. It will be the duty of the legislature to ballot for a senator to succeed Mr. Salisbury. If by any unfortunate combination of circumstances there should be a failure to elect before March fourth, the republican ascendancy in the United States senate might rest only upon the casting vote of the Vice-President, Mr. Morton, because the democrats would undoubtedly vote not to admit the senator who will be appointed to represent New Hampshire until an election can be had. It is gratifying to know that there is no probability of a deadlock in Delaware. The republicans, there is good reason to believe, are determined to make a prompt choice as well as a wise one, and to avoid danger of suggesting obstructive action to the democrats in the legislature by means of a quarrel among themselves. If the republicans agree easily, the democratic senate will hardly have the courage to attempt to prevent an election. Later advices state that on yesterday the legislature of Delaware elected Anthony Higgins senator by a vote of 16 to 11, thus insuring the republicans the control of the United States senate for the next two years. Senator Higgins will succeed Salisbury.

The constitutional convention in New Hampshire has completed its work, and the amendments agreed on will be submitted to popular vote on March 12. The most significant of these are those providing that the biennial session of the legislature shall begin on the first Wednesday in January, instead of June, and giving the legislators a salary of $200 in lieu of $3 a day for their services. These things are both desirable, and the ratification of the amendments is pretty certainly assured. Of the adoption of the proposed prohibitory amendment there is grave doubt. The submission of such an amendment to the people, however, is in accordance with precedents set by other states, and is the best practical test that can be made of the strength of prohibition sentiment.

In forty-six days the 46th congress will close and determine. Nevertheless one of the contested election cases of 1886 is not yet decided. It is the case of Smalls against Elliott, and though the committee elections made a report in favor of the sitting member last June the house has not yet seen fit to act on it. Do the majority fear that the undeniably partisan character of the report will disgust some of their own numbers so deeply that they will vote in favor of Mr. Smalls? According to the constitution, each house of congress is the judge of "the qualifications of its own members." The qualifications of one member seem to be a matter of little concern to the present house of representatives.

The St. Louis Republic is of the opinion that President Cleveland is thoroughly in earnest in his determination that the protective idea shall be whittled out of the tariff? Well, what if he is? After March 4th Mr. Cleveland's opinion on that subject or any other will be as weighty as that of any one of several millions of citizens of the United States—and no more so.

The Hon. Joseph Reed, chief justice of the supreme court of Iowa, will presently resign his place to enter congress. His successor, it is said, will be General Joseph Given, a district judge. He was a drummer-boy in the Mexican war, and in the war of the rebellion rose from the rank of a private to that of a brigadier-general.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

Both Houses at Work Introducing New Laws.

Some of the More Important Bills of To-Day.

Special to the Gazette.
In the assembly this morning resolutions adopted regarding labor contracts. The committee was requested to send in facts as to the effect of prison labor on the boot and shoe trade of the state. A joint resolution was introduced for a committee to consider, enlightening capital buildings by electricity.

The house after a lengthy discussion granted the use of the assembly chamber this evening to Miss Kate Bushnell to lecture on the dens of Northern Wisconsin.

A bill was introduced to amend the charter of Legion of Honor and city charter of Milwaukee; also to increase salary of state superintendent of schools to $4,000, with power to appoint an assistant.

The senate introduced a bill to amend the fence law, also to provide that unless a chattel mortgage is recorded it cannot be valid against third party. No chattel mortgage on furniture valid unless signed by wife of mortgagee.

To provide that keepers of houses of ill-fame and people who lease premises for immoral purposes shall be punished by not more than three, nor less than one year's imprisonment; or by fine of from two to five hundred dollars, and make it the duty of the sheriff and district attorney to prosecute on information and belief without the signature of a third party to complaint.

A joint resolution for a committee to investigate dance houses, was referred to a committee on state affairs, and the governor was requested to send any information he might possess, to that committee.

SENATE MEETING OF AN AUTHOR.
Mr. Thickhead (meeting old acquaintance)—Hello, Pusher, I haven't seen you for an age. What are you driving at now?
Mr. Pusher (successful author)—I am writing another book.

Mr. Thickhead—Sure enough. I forgot you were a literary man. (Drawing a long breath and shaking his head.) I don't think I'd ever succeed as an author. I lack gall, I suppose. I haven't got enough conceit. They tell me you're coming right to the front, Pusher. Glad to hear it—glad to hear it. Good-by (walking off). He looked mighty glum. What in thunder could I have said to offend him?

A Thrilling Experience.
Epiphany on a tombstone in the island of Jamaica. "Here lieth the body of Lewis Gally, Esq., who died the 15th of September, 1739, aged 80 years. He was born at Montpellier, in France, which place he left for his religion, and settled in this island where in the great earthquake of the year 1692, he was swallowed up, and by the great providence of God, by a second shock, was thrown out into the sea, where he continued swimming till he was taken up by a boat and miraculously preserved. Hereafter lived in great reputation and was universally lamented."

Alexandra.
Twenty-five years ago the now Princess of Wales and future Queen of England was living on the third floor of a corner house in Copenhagen, and her father, whom no one ever dreamed then of becoming a King, was poorer than many a burgher in the same street. She and her two sisters, now the Czarina of Russia and the Duchess of Cambridge, occupied the same room, scantily furnished, and instead of a wardrobe, a curtain drawn loosely over the wall held up their few dresses hung. They had never worn a silk dress in their lives.

NEWS ACROSS THE SEA.

THE PARNELL COMMISSION RESUMES ITS SITTING.

Decision in O'Brien's Case Reserved—Murders—Foreign News.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—The Parnell Commission has resumed its sittings. Sir Charles Russell, counsel for the Parnellites, applied for an order against the Worcester Times for certain comments made upon the Commission.

Presiding Justice Hannen said he regretted the repeated applications of this character, which he declared, caused more distress to the court than the prosecution of the inquiry itself. He appealed to counsel to use their influence to prevent such statements as the Worcester Times is charged with having published. The court, he said, would decide upon the application later.

Mr. William O'Brien appeared before the commission under citation. He stated that he accepted the responsibility for the article in United Ireland, on account of which he was summoned, but denied that he intended any disrespect to the court, and disclaimed any insinuation that the judges were not doing their duty. The court reserved judgment.

Mr. O'Brien said that he did not assume to question their lordships' ruling, but urged that he was entitled to comment upon the scandalous evidence that was being given before the commission. Continuing, he said: "We are most anxious to meet the charges made against us. Month after month we are incurring frightful expenses, and yet the Times has not touched the one allegation made in its columns, which, if proved, would make this matter entirely superfluous. We do not criticize the court, but the conduct of the Times. We desire to come to the point. This is the object of our Scotch action."

The counsel for Mrs. Brodick, warden of the Merton college, Oxford, who was summoned to appear before the commission to-day for making a speech in which he compared Messrs. Davitt and Dillon to the Whitechapel murderer, repudiated the construction placed upon the speech and denied that Mr. Brodick had intended any contempt of court.

Justice Hannen said that after the assurance of counsel it was unnecessary for the court to take any further steps in the matter. The taking of evidence was then resumed, and testimony was introduced relative to evictions in Tipperary.

HAS THE FIEND BEEN CAUGHT?

A Man Arrested in Tunnels for the Murders in Whitechapel.
TUNIS, Jan. 16.—The police here have captured a band of robbers and assassins. Among the members of the band is a man who is believed to have perpetrated the recent revolting murders in the Whitechapel district of London. The British consul here has forwarded his government all the details connected with the arrests. The supposed Whitechapel murderer is charged with having committed a murder in Tunis similar to those committed in Whitechapel. He has confessed that he recently lived in Whitechapel.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—A conditional writ of habeas corpus has been granted in Dublin for the release of Mr. Edward Harrington, who was sentenced to six months' imprisonment for publishing in his paper, the Kerry Sentinel, reports concerning meetings of suppressed branches of the National league. The writ was granted on the ground that the certificate of publication under the newspaper act was informal. The case will be argued Friday.

THREE YOUNG GIRLS BURNED.

A Fire in a New York Box Factory Results in a Loss of Life.
New York, Jan. 15.—A fire at noon to-day in the New York Patent Cigar Box factory at 717 Fifth street caused a damage of $5,000 and the loss of three lives. Five girls were at work upon the upper floor and two were carried down the ladder by the firemen. The other three lost their lives. They were Josephine Farenkopf, about 20 years old; Lena Straub, 24 years old, and Esther Appel, 22 years old. The girls were suffocated by the dense smoke, and their bodies were not badly burned.

BABY FARMING IN ST. LOUIS.

Sensational Disclosures Expected to Follow a Woman's Arrest.
ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 16.—A sensational arrest was made here to-day which promises to result in the exposure of baby farming with all the heartless cruelty right under the eyes of the city authorities. A woman who gave her name as Jane Suffer called at the corner's office and gave notice that two babies who had been in her charge had died and that the city would have to bury them. She said the children had been left with her by their mothers. One was a boy named Frank Todd, about 5 weeks old, and the other a girl called Mary Frances Smith, about a week older. Deputy Coroner Dunbar went to the woman's house, 1413 Cass avenue, and as a result of his investigation Mrs. Suffer was arrested. The bodies of the dead infants were terribly emaciated.

Des Moines, Iowa.—The railway commissioners drew lots, as provided by law, to determine the length of their respective terms of office. Commissioner F. T. Campbell (Rep.) drew the three years term, Peter A. Dey (Dem.) the two year term, and Spencer Smith (Rep.) the one year term. Mr. Dey was re-elected president and W. W. Ainsworth Secretary.

FRANCE'S WINE CROP.

It Is Very Satisfactory in Quantity but Not Good in Quality.

New York, Jan. 16.—Edmund Yates, in his London column to the Tribune, says: "The French vintage last year was a larger one than there has been since 1880, but it is rather disappointing to note that the yield was largest in the southern districts, which produce the common wine of the country, while the Burgundy and Champagne districts were badly favored both as regards the quantity and probably the quality of their vintage. It is true the Bordeaux vintage is very much larger than it has been for some time, but considering that more than one hundred and fifty millions of gallons of wine were imported into that part of France from Spain, the prospect of getting pure claret, as we call Bordeaux wines, is not much improved. France has, since the appearance of phylloxera, become a wine importing country, for while fifteen or twenty years ago the imports were only 14,000,000 gallons and the exports 70,000,000, the former now exceed 350,000,000 gallons, while the exports dropped last year to less than 30,000,000.

—A report was circulated on the streets this morning that Mr. Truman Mosher was dead, which afterward proved untrue. Mr. Mosher is very low and his death is liable to occur at any moment. He may possibly live through the day.
—It is now definitely settled that the Farmer's Institute will be held in this city on January 31st and February 1st and 2nd. The sessions will be held in Lappin's hall. Mr. E. B. Reimstreet, secretary of the Rock County Agricultural Society, is taking much interest in this meeting, and it is owing to extra efforts on his part that this meeting has been secured in Janesville.
—The alarm of fire at 5:57 o'clock last evening, from box 28, called the fire department to Mrs. Nelson's meat market, North Main street. The fire proved to be on the platform in the rear of the building, where some empty pork barrels were being cleaned by smoking. The person in charge of the work had carelessly kindled more fire than he intended, hence the fire. Luckily it was discovered in time, or perhaps a more serious fire would have resulted. No real loss.
—The directors elected at the regular annual meeting of the Luma Mutual Fire Insurance Company held January 8th, 1889, namely William Alexander, C. B. Palmer, Fred Gould, W. J. McCord and J. B. Lewis, organized by making William Alexander president; Fred Gould secretary, and W. J. McCord surveyor. The secretary reported the outstanding insurance December 31, 1888, at $314,620; insured during the past year, $68,135; losses paid during same time, $533.
—At ten o'clock last night Fire Marshal Blank received a telephone message from Geneva asking if an engine could be dispatched to that city to help extinguish a fire. Chief Blank immediately answered that he would send help if desired, and immediately placed one of the fire steamers in readiness to load on the cars when he received word that the fire was under control. The morning papers are all silent regarding a fire at Geneva, and no communication has been had with the city to-day, so the extent of the fire is not known.
—Harry Merrill, of the gas company, in responding to the fire alarm last evening, collided with a good solid stream of water which had just been turned on a line of hose laid up North Main street. Harry was in a hurry to reach the scene of the fire in order to shut off gas and save the meter. He always responds to fires in a hurry, and in order to exonerate his speed and save time has provided a horse and buggy, with "quick hitching attachments." He turned into North Main street from Prospect avenue last night just as the water shot up the street from the nozzle. The horse "shied" a little on the turn, just enough to tip the vehicle a little and give Harry opportunity to light on his feet. A couple of less fortunate individuals who caught on to his rig fared worse. They took water, straight, but are keeping quiet about it.
—The fire boys caught Assistant Fire Marshal Osgood for the cigars last evening. Marshal Osgood is very fleet of foot and generally lands at a fire with both feet ready for active work. He was on hand last evening and quickly surveyed the scene, and thinking, perhaps, that the engineer at the pumping station might take time by the forelock and needlessly unbank his fires, rushed to the nearest fire alarm box to strike "fire out." It was very dark at the box and he had to feel for the little key with which to strike the signal. He found the key, but before he was aware of it, so delicate is the little instrument, that he unknowingly sent in the signal for "direct pressure." George caught on to a telephone right quick and countermanded the order, and later "set 'em up" for the boys.

OBITUARY.
WM. A. EGER.
The death of Wm. A. Eger, brief notice of which was made in the Gazette of last evening, was a surprise to his many friends in Janesville, few of whom were aware of his illness.
Mr. Eger had been troubled for some time with cancer, which was the cause of his death. He was sixty-three years of age; he settled in Janesville in 1850 and continued to reside here until the summer of 1872, when he removed to Chicago. He was a blacksmith by occupation, and carried on that business while a resident of this city, and also in Chicago. Mr. Eger was one of the first to lend a hand in the organization of the Janesville fire department, being for many years one of the leading spirits in No. 2 company and its foreman for several years. In 1868 he was first assistant engineer of the department, serving under Chief Engineer James Clark. He was also a prominent member of the Odd Fellows, being a member of Janesville City Lodge No. 90, and continuing his membership in that lodge until terminated by his death. He served as deputy sheriff under Sheriff Pember, and was popular in any undertaking in which he enlisted.
He leaves a wife and family of three children—Mr. Alonzo M. Eger, Mrs. Hattie A. Clark and Mr. Fred A. Eger—all now residents of Chicago.
The remains will be brought to this city for interment and will arrive to-morrow evening. Funeral services will be held at All Souls church on Friday morning at ten o'clock. The funeral will be conducted in accordance with the ritual of the Odd Fellows and under the direction of Janesville City Lodge No. 90.

Tobacco Farming.
Some Timely Points From an Experienced Grower.
How the Tobacco Crop Should be Raised and Handled.
To the Editor.
Since my last communication, the Wisconsin tobacco growers have been blessed with good weather for casing and taking down tobacco, so that now the tobacco is down and on my farm it is in the bundle, and
WAITING FOR BUYERS:
Here is the great trouble of some farmers—and to this class is this article written—many of them have nothing to do and say they will sell in the bundle, or give it away before assorting it—that they cannot sort it to suit the buyer, and that it is better for the dealer to assort his purchases, etc. All these excuses and many more, such as, no time, room, or help, etc., are heard daily by the buyer. The fact is, it will pay every farmer to assort his tobacco in first class shape. The idea that an intelligent farmer can not assort his crop as well as nine-tenths of the warehouses assort it, is ridiculous. Who are employed and do the assorting in warehouses? In most cases they are foreigners who are taken in and taught how to assort in two or three days. Some of them become quite fair hands and in a week many of them know more than the farmer who has raised and assorted for twenty-five years (in their own estimation). If it pays the dealer to assort the crop in five or six grades, bring it all done, why will it not pay the producer to learn of some new comer from Norway or Germany, who to use his own expression "worked on veck mit a varehouse" and is willing to assort and pack for the producer for one cent per pound? To be sure it is very nice after a long hard season's work to "get rid" of your crop in the bundle and to those who can so sell it is all right but not one third of the tobacco raised in this state will be assorted in warehouses, and as spring approaches it is not best to leave the tobacco in bundle, but the sorter it is assorted and packed in cases after the bundle gets dry, the better. To those who are afraid the tobacco will not keep, would say if your tobacco is not in proper condition for the buyer to pack, it will keep, and if you have used water either from a patent sprayer or broom, it is liable to mold. Another question is, what is the prospect for price? To this we answer, for first class crops, there always has been a good market price and without doubt always will pay the producer as well or better than other crops. But it is the aim of too many growers to get quantity instead of quality. In the town of Porter is a grower who has for some time produced ten acres of good tobacco; last year he cut down his acreage to five, used just as much barn yard fertilizer and the result is he has more pounds of tobacco than ever before. Having used the same seed but set the plants closer, and has a finer quality, consequently more value.
Ask any dealer if it is the man who has the largest field who gets the largest check for his tobacco? The time can not come too soon for Wisconsin farmers, as well as our eastern friends, to use their best endeavors to produce the best quality of either wrapper, binder, or filler, and then as in the case cited, they receive more money per acre than when striving to produce large quantities.
It is very easy to give advice as to how a crop should be raised. In fact there is scarcely a cigar-maker in the country but has an idea that he could produce a first class wrapper crop if his theories were followed. But after twenty years experience the writer finds that no two crops raised are alike, and that the careful observer will find more to learn each year, and we hope that the experience thus gained will be used as much as possible by the amateur, but the great trouble with many is they do not take the papers to read before different methods, etc., employment. In fact, those men, as a rule, who need instruction in this part of agriculture, do, read no papers at all; while the man who is well advanced in this science (for it is as near a science as is possible) keeps steadily improving by taking all the tobacco papers he can afford.

THE NEW RAILROAD.
The question of the contemplated line of railroad through Johnston to Geneva Lake, will be made the special order of business before the board of supervisors to-morrow. It is generally conceded that the action of the board may have much to do with the success or failure of the enterprise. The Gazette will take the liberty to suggest that so far as the county is concerned, it is simply a problem of dollars and cents. Not that it will benefit Janesville or Johnston, but will it save the tax payers of the county money? The board are well aware of the fact that in the new future something must be done in the way of permanent improvement. If the location of the poor farm is changed and new buildings erected throughout, the result will be an outlay of $50,000 to $75,000. It is true that this expense may be deferred possibly two or three years, but it is only a question of time. If an investment of from $15,000 to $20,000, the current year will accomplish the same result, and $15,000 more would put up suitable building for the insane department, it would seem like a good stroke of policy to encourage the enterprise by a substantial appropriation. The question demands the thoughtful consideration that it will doubtless receive at the hands of the county board.

L. W. POWELL.
A STRANGE STORY REVEALED IN THE CHICAGO POLICE COURT.
Wisconsin papers are publishing a Chicago dispatch under date of January 14th, to the following effect:—
"L. W. Powell, once honored, respected and courted by his fellow men, died in the police dock before Justice Lyon, this morning. Officer Dyke found him drunk on the street and arrested him. The magistrate assessed the $25 fine imposed. Powell, a 35-year-old native of the Minneapolis Tribune, fifteen years ago. He was a young man and unmarried. The story of his downfall is one of the most peculiar ever recorded in print. Powell met and loved a young lady named Burnham living at Waterloo, Iowa, and their marriage was a social event. A separation occurred and a transformation took place. Powell resigned his position and plunged into dissipation and drunkenness. His young wife went into retirement and resided in men's clothing, and the fact was proclaimed to the world that 'her sex' had remained undiscovered until after her marriage to Powell, and that 'Miss' Burnham, or 'Mrs.' Powell, was a man and henceforth to be known as Mr. Burnham. Under that name he is now a prosperous citizen of Waterloo, Ia."
Mr. Powell was well known in Janesville in 1861-3. At one time he was managing editor of the Chicago Republican. Brodhead, Wis., should be substituted for Waterloo, Iowa, then the dispatch would be more correct. At one time Mr. Powell edited the Broadhead Independent, and it was during this time that he was married. On his wedding tour, which embraced the larger eastern cities, including Washington, he and his bride were "shadowed" by the United States detectives, and it was reported at the time that before returning home his wife was arrested as a Confederate spy, and that it was by this means (on medical examination) that her sex was discovered. Powell at first did not appear to care much about the affair, nevertheless it worked on his mind, and the above is no doubt the outcome of his first matrimonial experience.

THE NEW RAILROAD.
The question of the contemplated line of railroad through Johnston to Geneva Lake, will be made the special order of business before the board of supervisors to-morrow. It is generally conceded that the action of the board may have much to do with the success or failure of the enterprise. The Gazette will take the liberty to suggest that so far as the county is concerned, it is simply a problem of dollars and cents. Not that it will benefit Janesville or Johnston, but will it save the tax payers of the county money? The board are well aware of the fact that in the new future something must be done in the way of permanent improvement. If the location of the poor farm is changed and new buildings erected throughout, the result will be an outlay of $50,000 to $75,000. It is true that this expense may be deferred possibly two or three years, but it is only a question of time. If an investment of from $15,000 to $20,000, the current year will accomplish the same result, and $15,000 more would put up suitable building for the insane department, it would seem like a good stroke of policy to encourage the enterprise by a substantial appropriation. The question demands the thoughtful consideration that it will doubtless receive at the hands of the county board.
THE INAUGURATION.
The Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company offers its patrons a splendid opportunity to visit Washington in March next, and participate in the imposing ceremonies incident to the inauguration of President Harrison. For that occasion tickets will be sold from all principal stations at the very low rate of one fare for the round trip. For full information regarding rates, dates of sale, etc., apply to agents Chicago & Northwestern Railway.
New supply of blank books at Sutherland's bookstore.
